
CONFERENCE

Wednesday, 25th February 2026

PREVENTIVE HEALTH CARE – FROM RESEARCH TO ACTION

SHORT CV

Photo: Private

FATEN BEN ABDELAZIZ

HEAD OF ENHANCED WELLBEING UNIT AT WHO, DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH PROMOTION

Dr Faten Ben Abdelaziz is Technical Lead Health Promotion in the Department of Determinants, Promotion and Prevention at the World Health Organization Headquarters, providing technical support to WHO Member States in policies and programmes development in areas of health promotion. She oversees the work on good governance for health and well-being societies, including healthy cities, health promoting schools, health literacy and community engagement.

Her current work focus is on intersectoral governance and policies that promote well-being of societies, promoting population levels health literacy, community empowerment, urban governance for health and well-being and health promoting schools.

Dr Ben Abdelaziz has previously served at the WHO Regional Office for the Eastern Mediterranean region (EMRO) as Regional Adviser for Health Education and Promotion and Coordinator of Health Promotion in the Department of Prevention of Noncommunicable Diseases (NCDs). At the WHO Centre for Health Development in Kobe, Japan, she served as Technical Officer for Health Promotion, Urbanization and Health, Health Equity, Women's Health and Gender, and Social Determinants of Health.